

The Moon of Blood:

the legend of the dragon gene

Have you ever heard of the blood moon?

It's a rare occurrence that happens when a red moon rises in the night sky.

According to legend, when the Blood Moon appears, in certain parts of the population awakens the dragon gene that is inside and prepares to kill.

This phenomenon has existed for centuries and its effects have been studied by scientists and historians alike.

The blood moon is shrouded in mystery and superstition, but what we do know is that it has a powerful effect on those who witness it. It is believed that during this time, people are more prone to violence and aggression because of their intensified emotions.

Some believe this could be attributed to an ancient "dragon gene" awakening within them during this time. Whether this is true remains to be seen, but one thing is certain: when the Blood Moon appears, it brings with it a sense of fear and apprehension for those who witness it.

The Blood Moon rose in the night sky and the city plunged into darkness. People looked up in awe and fear, wondering what effect this strange moon would have on them. Meanwhile, in the shadows, some began to feel an unknown strength and a thirst for blood that made them want to fight.

Chaos began to spread throughout the city. Police and emergency services worked to maintain order, but violence and destruction were unstoppable. The streets were full of people running and screaming, some armed with knives and others with sticks and stones. Shops were looted, vehicles burned and houses vandalized.

Meanwhile, a small group of people seemed immune to the madness that was taking over the city. They seemed to be focused, almost in a trance, and headed in an unknown direction. The people who crossed them seemed fearful, feeling the presence of a strange and powerful force in them.

Eventually, the group reached a secluded spot near the highest mountain in the area. There, they stopped in front of a dark cave, which seemed to be waiting for his arrival. One of them pulled out a bright object and placed it on the ground in front of the cave entrance. They knelt around the object and began to recite a prayer in an unknown language.

Suddenly, the earth shook and a huge force emerged from the cave. A red dragon, the size of a building, roared out. Those who were there seemed immune to the fear they should feel before the creature before them. The dragon approached them, and instead of attacking, he curled up beside them, as if happy to see them.

The group began to climb up the mountain, the dragon following them. They reached the top, where they stopped. The group knelt before the dragon and offered him something they carried in a bag. The dragon took it and after a moment, began to shrink and become a beautiful woman dressed in a red dragon costume.

The woman addressed the group and told them in a language they understood perfectly: "It has been a long wait. My name is Liria and I am the guardian of the blood moon. I need your help to protect the city from the dark forces that have been released tonight".

The group nodded silently, knowing they had an important task ahead. The woman led them back to the city, where together they fought against the darkness that had seized her. At dawn, the blood moon vanished and the city was silent.

The group said goodbye to Liria, who thanked them for their help and promised that she would need them again in the future. After that day, the city became a safer place, but the legend of the blood moon and the dragon gene awakening in some people continued for a long time.

As time passed, the group that had witnessed the appearance of Liria and the strength of the dragon, became a kind of secret brotherhood dedicated to protecting the city during each Blood Moon.

Whenever a Blood Moon approached, the members of the brotherhood met in secret and prepared for the battle they knew was coming. They trained in fighting techniques and combat strategies, and shared information and advice to confront the dark forces that were unleashed that night.

Over time, the legend of the Blood Moon and the existence of brotherhood spread throughout the city. Many believed that brotherhood was a myth, but others knew that they were real and that their work was crucial to maintaining peace during every Blood Moon.

Although the Blood Moon remained a rare and enigmatic phenomenon, the city had learned to live with it thanks to the courage and dedication of the secret brotherhood. Every time the red moon rose in the sky, the city prepared for the worst, but it knew it could count on a group of brave warriors willing to fight for it.

